How We Get There

Our plan is built on four pillars:

- New college and career ready standards and assessments for all students.
- Effective use of data to monitor student, teacher and school progress
- Great teachers & leaders to make it happen
- Support for struggling schools so that all may succeed

While each of these of these pillars will be used to reach our four goals, we have specific strategies as well. For example:

Goal 1: Increase the percentage of third graders meeting state standards in reading to 94% in 2020 from 69% in 2010.

- Students starting kindergarten this year will be the first group tested on new, more rigorous, Arizona standards in third grade.
- Starting in 2013, a new school letter grade system will include student level academic growth and will be reported on an A-F scale. Preliminary grades will be released for 2011 and 2012 in conjunction with the current labeling system.
- "Move on when Reading" provides information for parents on student reading and expectations of reading by the end of third grade. In 2014, students in third grade with reading scores in the "falls far below" category on state tests will not be promoted to fourth grade, unless they have a "good cause exemption" or parent consent.

Goal 2: Raise the high school graduation rate to at least 93% in 2020 from 75% in 2010.
